In November 2013 we launched a rebranded logo and website thanks to the generous support of the Verizon Foundation. Aimed at increasing awareness and accessibility, the redesigned website provides better functionality making it easier to navigate. The new site includes an interactive map where victims can easily connect to a local domestic violence organization for help.

We packed the site with victim-centered information to ensure relatable web content for victims who are concerned about their relationship and looking for help. And for the first time we’ve created an entire section of the website in Spanish to increase access for underserved communities.

In October 2013, CCADV released Connecticut’s 1st ever STATEWIDE PLAN FOR THE PREVENTION OF INTIMATE PARTNER VIOLENCE. The 3 year plan focuses on:

- Enhance program accountability
- Engage youth
- Reinforce the role of men
- Increase & strengthen programs
- Raise awareness

We launched Connecticut’s first statewide speakers bureau of male leaders speaking on domestic violence. Open to any man who wants to take action to prevent intimate partner violence, the campaign seeks to engage 10 men who will in turn educate 10 more men or boys about healthy relationships and how they can be part of the solution. Tools are offered that help participants raise awareness, take action in their local communities and increase accountability among their peers. In its first 8 months the campaign trained 300 MEN AND BOYS!

In August 2013, CCADV expanded the work of our Domestic Violence Fatality Review Committee to include the review of near-fatalities. Already meeting monthly to review intimate partner homicides, the Committee felt it was important to also examine some of the 171 incidents of near-fatal intimate partner violence in Connecticut in 2012. Near-fatalities are those incidents of intimate partner violence resulting in “serious physical injuries” as defined in Connecticut General Statutes. The goal of these reviews is to examine what policies and practices increased or decreased the survivor’s safety leading up to the incident.
With the support of our member organizations, CCADV was able to advance a comprehensive policy agenda during the 2014 session of the CT General Assembly that strengthened victim safety and increased offender accountability. Some of our major legislative victories included:

- Implemented financial relief as an option for some victims who obtain restraining orders - now even when certain abusers are removed from the family home, he or she may still have to pay household expenses
- Took steps towards addressing teen dating violence through the state’s Safe School Climate statutes
- Created penalties for maliciously disclosing the confidential location of emergency shelters
- Enhanced penalties for violation of restraining and protective orders
- Established a task force to study and recommend improvements for the service of restraining orders

Secured funding for:
- Statewide Spanish Hotline that ensures victims are able to access certified, Spanish-speaking domestic violence counselors 24 hours per day, 7 days per week
- 2 new civil court advocates who will provide safety planning while assisting victims with understanding the civil court process and obtaining restraining orders
