A “Guide to Healthcare Visits for Survivors” was developed to help survivors gain confidence in navigating the healthcare system. Obtaining healthcare through a primary care provider, specialists, behavioral health providers, etc. can be daunting, but the resources below can help you prepare, gain advocacy skills, and ensure that your health is being taken care of.

We also wanted to ensure that survivors have the resources they need as they navigate the healthcare system through COVID-19. When our state was forced to lock down in March 2020, the ability to get healthcare resources and supports became very difficult if you didn’t already have a primary care provider. As the state begins to reopen and we continue to navigate the COVID-19 pandemic, there is no better time to develop relationships with healthcare professionals and ensure that you have supports in the event that this pandemic forces us back to virtual healthcare again.

Included in this guide you will find helpful resources to prepare for healthcare appointments, lists to organize any questions and needs, suggestions to consider after the appointment is over, and information on your rights as a survivor. Finally you will find links to common questions around health insurance, eligibility, resources available for different populations, advocacy agencies and more. We hope that this resource will give you the confidence and supports necessary to take the next steps towards a healthier you.

WHY PRIORITIZING YOUR HEALTH MATTERS

As a survivor, going to see a health professional can be overwhelming and it is okay to have doubts when going to your appointments.

- Studies show that those who experience abuse are likely to have health problems. The stress associated with abuse takes a toll on one’s body and has a negative impact on overall wellbeing.
- It might be hard for you to prioritize yourself and focus on your own body. You may think that the problems will go away on their own and try to disassociate yourself from what you are experiencing. This is normal as doctors’ offices can inflate your stress and anxiety levels.
- It is important to prevent these obstacles from stopping yourself from seeking the help of a healthcare provider. Despite the fear and doubts you may hold going into the appointment. You will likely leave the appointment more confident in yourself and trusting of your doctor.

HOW TO PREPARE FOR A HEALTHCARE APPOINTMENT

- Ensure access when scheduling your appointment. Let them know about any needed assistance due to disability or if an interpreter will be needed. This way you know that you will have the resources that you need when you get there.
- Make sure to bring your insurance cards and a form of ID. If you don’t have insurance and need more information there are great resources here in CT (available below). Also, if you do not have insurance currently, victims are eligible for a “Special Enrollment Period.”
- Prepare a list of your medications, including prescriptions, over-the-counter medications, vitamins, herbal remedies or supplements, the dosage taken, any recent changes, and how they affect you.
- Plan to update the doctor — Let your doctor know what has been going on with your health since your last visit. If you have been treated in the emergency room or by a specialist, let your health professional know. You can also use this opportunity to mention any changes in your appetite, weight, sleep, energy level, vision, stress, etc.
- Make a list of your concerns and prioritize them — Do you have a new symptom you want to ask the doctor about? Do you want to get a flu shot? Are you concerned about how a treatment is affecting your daily life? If you have more than a few items to discuss, put them in order. Start with the ones most important to you. Making a list and bringing it with you can help ensure that you discuss everything you would like to cover during your appointment.
During Your Appointment...

- Be as honest and open as you are comfortable with. If you are uneasy, or not sure you are comfortable with the provider you chose, you can always ask to reschedule for another time or with another provider.
- Review your questions and goals with the provider.
- Ask for a better explanation if you do not understand something the health professional says. Doctors can use specialized terminology that may cause confusion.

Leaving Your Appointment...

- Voice any concerns or questions that you wanted to discuss with your provider. If they have already gone to another appointment, ask the staff to have them call you back or leave them a note with any other questions you might have.
- Ask for brochures or other resources if needed.
- Ask for copies of test results and scans for your personal records, or if you think you might need to bring them to other health appointments.
- Schedule any necessary follow up appointments. Enter any date related items into your calendar and set reminders.
- If you would feel more comfortable with their office scheduling the referrals, ask them to assist you with this. If you want to review the providers that they are suggesting for referral, let them know, and do your own research before calling to schedule.
- Review the contact information that they have on file. Make sure that they have the safest and best contact information to reach you at. If you have a time of day that you would prefer they reach out to you at, make that known.
- You can always ask to review your chart to ensure you have up to date information. It is important to check and update who might have access to your chart through emergency contacts, etc.
- After leaving the appointment, take a deep breath, and let yourself reflect on everything. Jot down any notes or helpful takeaways from the visit.

Access to Healthcare for Survivors and Knowing Your Rights

Access to Healthcare for Survivors: Federal healthcare policy is rapidly transforming how survivors and their families will access healthcare. For many survivors of domestic and sexual violence, access to healthcare is a vital part of healing and self-determination. Futures Without Violence is working with advocates and health providers to get survivors across the country access to the care and coverage they deserve.

Many survivors of domestic violence can enroll at any time. Because being a survivor of domestic violence is considered a Qualifying Life Event, survivors can enroll in health insurance at any time throughout the year. Insurance companies are prohibited from denying coverage to victims of domestic violence as a pre-existing condition. Survivors do not need to wait for Open Enrollment. They qualify for a Special Enrollment Period (SEP) because they are survivors of domestic violence. If survivors of domestic violence are not able to enroll in healthcare, they are eligible for a “hardship exemption” from paying the fee, because domestic violence is considered a qualifying life event. Screening and counseling for domestic violence are now benefits that health plans are required to cover.

Health centers are community-based and patient-directed organizations that deliver comprehensive, culturally competent, high-quality primary health care services. Health centers also often integrate access to pharmacy, mental health, substance use disorder, and oral health services in areas where economic, geographic, or cultural barriers limit access to affordable health care services. Health centers deliver care to the Nation’s most vulnerable individuals and families, including people experiencing homelessness, agricultural workers, residents of public housing, and the Nation’s veterans.

Health Center Program fundamentals: Deliver high quality, culturally competent, comprehensive primary care, as well as supportive services such as health education, translation, and transportation that promote access to health care. Provide services regardless of patients’ ability to pay and charge for services on a sliding fee scale. Operate under the direction of patient-majority governing boards of autonomous community-based organizations. These include public and private nonprofit organizations and tribal and faith-based organizations. Develop systems of patient-centered and integrated care that respond to the unique needs of diverse medically underserved areas and populations. Meet requirements regarding administrative, clinical, and financial operations.

How Health Centers work: Health centers overcome geographic, cultural, linguistic, and other barriers to care by delivering coordinated and comprehensive primary and preventive services. This care reduces health disparities by emphasizing care management of patients with multiple health care needs and the use of key quality improvement practices, including health information technology. Most health centers receive Health Center Program federal grant funding to improve the health of underserved and vulnerable populations. Some health centers receive funding to focus on special populations including individuals and families experiencing homelessness, migratory and seasonal agricultural workers, and residents of public housing. The majority of health center operating funds come from Medicaid, Medicare, private insurance, patient fees, and other resources. Some health centers that meet all Health Center Program requirements do not receive Federal award funding. These are called Health Center Program look-alikes. Health centers leverage a variety of other related programs. Health centers that receive federal grant funding may gain access to medical malpractice coverage under Federal Tort Claims Act (FTCA), and some receive federal loan guarantees for capital improvements.

All health centers, including look-alikes, gain access to: Federally Qualified Health Center Prospective Payment System reimbursement for services to Medicare and Medicaid beneficiaries; 340B Drug Pricing Program discounts for pharmaceutical products; free vaccines for uninsured and underinsured children through the Vaccines for Children Program; and, assistance in the recruitment and retention of primary care providers through the National Health Service Corps.

YOUR HEALTH INFORMATION PRIVACY RIGHTS

Most of us feel that our health information is private and should be protected. That is why there is a federal law that sets rules for health care providers and health insurance companies about who can look at and receive our health information. This law, called the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 (HIPAA), gives you rights over your health information, including the right to get a copy of your information, make sure it is correct, and know who has seen it.

Get It.
You can ask to see or get a copy of your medical record and other health information. If you want a copy, you may have to put your request in writing and pay for the cost of copying and mailing. In most cases, your copies must be given to you within 30 days.

Check It.
You can ask to change any wrong information in your file or add information to your file if you think something is missing or incomplete. For example, if you and your hospital agree that your file has the wrong result for a test, the hospital must change it. Even if the hospital believes the test result is correct, you still have the right to have your disagreement noted in your file. In most cases, the file should be updated within 60 days.

Know Who Has Seen It.
By law, your health information can be used and shared for specific reasons not directly related to your care, like making sure doctors give good care, making sure nursing homes are clean and safe, reporting when the flu is in your area, or reporting as required by state or federal law. In many of these cases, you can find out who has seen your health information. You can:

- Learn how your health information is used and shared by your doctor or health insurer. Generally, your health information cannot be used for purposes not directly related to your care without your permission. For example, your doctor cannot give it to your employer, or share it for things like marketing and advertising, without your written authorization. You probably received a notice telling you how your health information may be used on your first visit to a new health care provider or when you got new health insurance, but you can ask for another copy anytime.

- Let your providers or health insurance companies know if there is information you do not want to share. You can ask that your health information not be shared with certain people, groups, or companies. If you go to a clinic, for example, you can ask the doctor not to share your medical records with other doctors or nurses at the clinic. You can ask for other kinds of restrictions, but they do not always have to agree to do what you ask, particularly if it could affect your care. Finally, you can also ask your health care provider or pharmacy not to tell your health insurance company about care you receive or drugs you take, if you pay for the care or drugs in full and the provider or pharmacy does not need to get paid by your insurance company.
• Ask to be reached somewhere other than home. You can make reasonable requests to be contacted at different places or in a different way. For example, you can ask to have a nurse call you at your office instead of your home or to send mail to you in an envelope instead of on a postcard.

If you think your rights are being denied or your health information is not being protected, you have the right to file a complaint with your provider, health insurer, or the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

PRIVACY, SECURITY, AND ELECTRONIC HEALTH RECORDS

Your health care provider may be moving from paper records to electronic health records (EHRs) or may be using EHRs already. EHRs allow providers to use information more effectively to improve the quality and efficiency of your care, but EHRs will not change the privacy protections or security safeguards that apply to your health information.

EHRs and Your Health Information

EHRs are electronic versions of the paper charts in your doctor's or other health care provider's office. An EHR may include your medical history, notes, and other information about your health including your symptoms, diagnoses, medications, lab results, vital signs, immunizations, and reports from diagnostic tests such as x-rays.

Providers are working with other doctors, hospitals, and health plans to find ways to share that information. The information in EHRs can be shared with other organizations involved in your care if the computer systems are set up to talk to each other. Information in these records should only be shared for purposes authorized by law or by you.

You have privacy rights whether your information is stored as a paper record or stored in an electronic form. The same federal laws that already protect your health information also apply to information in EHRs.

Benefits of Having EHRs

Whether your health care provider is just beginning to switch from paper records to EHRs or is already using EHRs within the office, you will likely experience one or more of the following benefits:

- Improved Quality of Care. As your doctors begin to use EHRs and set up ways to securely share your health information with other providers, it will make it easier for everyone to work together to make sure you are getting the care you need. For example:
  - Information about your medications will be available in EHRs so that health care providers don't give you another medicine that might be harmful to you.
  - EHR systems are backed up like most computer systems, so if you are in an area affected by a disaster, like a hurricane, your health information can be retrieved.
  - EHRs can be available in an emergency. If you are in an accident and are unable to explain your health history, a hospital that has a system may be able to talk to your doctor's system. The hospital will get information about your medications, health issues, and tests, so decisions about your emergency care are faster and more informed.
• More Efficient Care. Doctors using EHRs may find it easier or faster to track your lab results and share progress with you. If your doctors’ systems can share information, one doctor can see test results from another doctor, so the test doesn’t always have to be repeated. Especially with x-rays and certain lab tests, this means you are at less risk from radiation and other side effects. When tests are not repeated unnecessarily, it also means you pay less for your health care in copayments and deductibles.

• More Convenient Care. EHRs can alert providers to contact you when it is time for certain screening tests. When doctors, pharmacies, labs, and other members of your health care team are able to share information, you may no longer have to fill out all the same forms over and over again, wait for paper records to be passed from one doctor to the other, or carry those records yourself.

Keeping Your Electronic Health Information Secure

Most of us feel that our health information is private and should be protected. The federal government put in place the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 (HIPAA) Privacy Rule to ensure you have rights over your own health information, no matter what form it is in. The government also created the HIPAA Security Rule to require specific protections to safeguard your electronic health information. A few possible measures that can be built in to EHR systems may include:

• “Access control” tools like passwords and PIN numbers, to help limit access to your information to authorized individuals.

• “Encrypting” your stored information. That means your health information cannot be read or understood except by those using a system that can “decrypt” it with a “key.”

• An “audit trail” feature, which records who accessed your information, what changes were made and when.

Finally, federal law requires doctors, hospitals, and other health care providers to notify you of a “breach.” The law also requires the health care provider to notify the Secretary of Health and Human Services. If a breach affects more than 500 residents of a state or jurisdiction, the health care provider must also notify prominent media outlets serving the state or jurisdiction. This requirement helps patients know if something has gone wrong with the protection of their information and helps keep providers accountable for EHR protection.

SHARING HEALTH INFORMATION WITH FAMILY MEMBERS AND FRIENDS

There is a federal law, called the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 (HIPAA), that sets rules for health care providers and health plans about who can look at and receive your health information, including those closest to you – your family members and friends. The HIPAA Privacy Rule ensures that you have rights over your health information, including the right to get your information, make sure it’s correct, and know who has seen it.

What Happens if You Want to Share Health Information with a Family Member or a Friend?

HIPAA requires most doctors, nurses, hospitals, nursing homes, and other health care providers to protect the privacy of your health information. However, if you don’t object, a health care provider or health plan may share relevant information with family members or friends involved in your health care or payment for your health care in certain circumstances.

When Your Health Information Can be Shared

- Under HIPAA, your health care provider may share your information face-to-face, over the phone, or in writing. A health care provider or health plan may share relevant information if:
  - You give your provider or plan permission to share the information.
  - You are present and do not object to sharing the information.
  - You are not present, and the provider determines based on professional judgment that it’s in your best interest.

Examples:

- An emergency room doctor may discuss your treatment in front of your friend when you ask your friend to come into the treatment room.
- Your hospital may discuss your bill with your daughter who is with you and has a question about the charges, if you do not object.
- Your doctor may discuss the drugs you need to take with your health aide who has come with you to your appointment.
- Your nurse may not discuss your condition with your brother if you tell her not to.
- HIPAA also allows health care providers to give prescription drugs, medical supplies, x-rays, and other health care items to a family member, friend, or other person you send to pick them up.

A health care provider or health plan may also share relevant information if you are not around or cannot give permission when a health care provider or plan representative believes, based on professional judgment, that sharing the information is in your best interest.
Examples:

- You had emergency surgery and are still unconscious. Your surgeon may tell your spouse about your condition, either in person or by phone, while you are unconscious.
- Your doctor may discuss your drugs with your caregiver who calls your doctor with a question about the right dosage.
- A doctor may not tell your friend about a past medical problem that is unrelated to your current condition.

PLEASE INFORM YOUR PATIENTS when you refer them to ICM. Be sure your patients know to expect a call from a HUSKY Health nurse. We can help your patients once they accept services and work with our nurses and/or our CHWs.

TO REFER YOUR PATIENTS to the Intensive Care Management (ICM) program call 1.800.440.5071 x2024 or complete and fax the ICM Referral Form to 1.866.361.7242

To download the ICM Referral Form go to www.ct.gov/husky. Click “For Providers,” “Provider Forms” from under the “Reports & Resources” menu item, then “ICM Referral Form.”
The Community Support Services Program is a part of Intensive Care Management (ICM). It empowers families to improve their healthcare and stabilize their living situations in the community by referring them to community organizations, medical home providers, and other resources. Community Health Workers (CHWs) are front line staff who cultivate and maintain awareness of the cultures and values of the communities they serve.

CHWs WORK CLOSELY WITH ICM CARE MANAGERS

- Help members navigate their healthcare system
- Complement the work of ICM Care Manager services by ensuring socioeconomic needs are met
- Maintain healthy behaviors in support of managing any chronic conditions in culturally relevant ways

CHWs OUTREACH TO MEMBERS

- Develop positive and supportive relationships with members to ensure that they remain actively engaged with their PCP by:
  - Keeping appointments
  - Participating with care plans
  - Adhering to medication regimens
- Conduct face-to-face visits at home or at a comfortable, public meeting place
- Assess member and family social, emotional, and physical healthcare needs
- Facilitate member access to community resources including, but not limited to:
  - Nutrition services
  - Shelters
  - Utility assistance
  - Clothing assistance

CHWs educate members and serve as their advocates as they use HUSKY Health benefits and services. Through their work with CHWs, members become better equipped to address their healthcare and socioeconomic needs as active participants with their own care plan goals.

PLEASE INFORM YOUR PATIENTS when you refer them to ICM. Be sure your patients know to expect a call from a HUSKY Health nurse. We can help your patients once they accept services and work with our nurses and/or our CHWs.

Emergency Room Or Urgent Care: Which One Should You Choose?

If you have questions, you may always call your Primary Care Provider (PCP) first, if you aren’t sure what type of care you may need.

Your PCP’s phone number: _______________________ 24/7 Nurse Helpline: 1.800.859.9889

To find an urgent care center near you, download an updated Urgent Care Brochure. Visit www.ct.gov/husky, click “For Members,” then “View a list of Urgent Care Centers” under the “Find a Doctor” menu item.

When Should You Go to Urgent Care?
Examples Include:

- Sore throat or cough
- Cold or flu symptoms
- Ear pain
- Urinary tract infections
- Mild rash
- Fever lasting 24+ hours
- Sprains
- Unable to get an appointment with your PCP
- Toothache

When Should You Go to the ER?
Examples Include:

- Chest pain & shortness of breath
- Broken bones and dislocated joints
- Head or eye injuries
- Changes in mental state
- Fainting or loss of consciousness
- Severe pain
- Bleeding from a large open wound

If you go to the ER or an urgent care center, please schedule a follow-up appointment with your PCP within 7 days of your visit.
Where to Get Health Care When It’s Not an Emergency

Unsure of where to get care when you are sick or injured?

Your Guide to Emergency Room alternatives

Always contact your primary care physician, if possible
Urgent Care Clinics and Walk-In Medical Centers

Always contact your primary care physician (PCP) first.

Your PCP is your main source of healthcare and can help coordinate care with other providers. If your PCP is not available, urgent care clinics and walk-in medical centers can provide care for non-life threatening medical problems or problems that can’t wait.

Reasons to visit urgent care clinics and walk-in medical centers:

- Common illnesses, such as colds, coughs, flu symptoms, ear infections, sore throats, migraines, fever, and skin infections.
- Minor injuries, such as a twisted or sprained ankle, back pain, minor cuts and burns, minor broken bones, and minor eye injuries.

Urgent care clinics and walk-in medical centers usually accept walk-ins. Many are open seven days a week. Some are even open late during the week and on holidays.

If your provider is not available, call the 24-hour Nurse Helpline at 1.800.859.9889.

Our registered nurses are available 24 hours a day, seven days a week when you can’t reach your provider or your provider’s answering service. Your provider knows you best and is your best source of help, but our nurses are available to help you when your provider is not.

CONNECTICUT’S STATE HEALTH INSURANCE ASSISTANCE PROGRAM

CHOICES helps Connecticut’s older adults and persons with disabilities with Medicare understand their Medicare coverage and healthcare options.

Certified counselors across the State provide objective, free person-centered assistance so Medicare recipients can make informed choices about their benefits. CHOICES also provides community outreach, application assistance, and information and referral services on a variety of topics including long term care services and support.

CHOICES is managed by the State Department on Aging through a partnership with the Center for Medicare Advocacy and Connecticut’s Area Agencies on Aging, with funding from the State of Connecticut and the Administration for Community Living.

Who is Eligible for Assistance?

- Older adults
- Persons with disabilities
- CT residents becoming eligible for Medicare
- Medicare beneficiaries of all ages
- Providers and caregivers seeking information and help
